Marlaine suffered from multiple sensitivities. She loved chocolate, but had given it up as a young woman because of the horrible migraine headaches that it caused her. Over the years her love for chocolate would occasionally win out over her memory of her migraines and she would sample just a little bit only to be reminded of how horrible the pain was.

Additionally, she had a severe reaction to cats. She, herself, didn't care much for cats, but her son had a cat. That meant that when Marlaine wanted to go see her grandchildren, she knew she was in for weeks of runny nose, watery eyes, itching, sneezing and the head-in-a-fishbowl feeling from sinus irritation. Even just spending few days with her grandchildren would lead to several days/weeks of recovery.

Marlaine treated for multiple allergens including chocolate and cats. Immediately after the treatments she was able to eat chocolate again without any reaction. On her next visit to her son, she had no reaction to being around the cats.

18 years later I ran into Marlaine. She related to me that she is still loving her chocolate. Even though she doesn't like cats, she still does not have a reaction when she has to be around them.

She refers the NAET to a "voodoo" treatment because she doesn't understand how it works. "But," she says with a smile, "I'm okay with a little "voodoo" if it helps me as much as NAET has."
